6. Received applications for CRS support to PhD students – spring call The CRS has received 6 applications to the spring call. Each application has requested 5000 kr for participation in conferences. The study coordinators recommended to the Advisory group to support all the applications since all meet the eligibility requirements. The Advisory Board decided to support all the applications. The applicants are going to be reminded that they can get funded the full trip if they travel by train or bus to the conference and that they will be able to use the money for a similar purpose later on if they need to cancel the participation in the conference due to the development of the coronavirus. The period for using Bolin Centre funds has been extended by 1 year.	CP/OH	App. 2
7. Update on the PhD courses planned in 2020 The new Climate Science course started a week ago with only 7 students registered. This low response may be caused by the fact that the course was announced relatively close to the start date. The intention is to offer this course again in a couple of years. All directors of PhD studies at the different departments are asked to inform their PhD students about the updated web page for the CRS, in particular the information on planned courses and events.	CP/OH
8. Presentation of the new web site for the Bolin Centre CRS Otto Hermelin presented the new web site for the CRS to the Advisory Board. The site will be updated continuously. The Advisory Board gave two suggestions to improve the website: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - changing the format of the application form for financial support from pdf to Word - add a text in the PhD course list to invite students that are not yet part of the CRS to become a member.
